About Dr Samuel Ho

Plastic Surgeon, Dr Samuel Ho from Allure Plastic Surgery has a keen interest in research and has had more than 17 publications in leading international journals such as Plastic & Reconstructive Surgery and Journal of Plastic Reconstructive & Aesthetic Surgery and is one of the contributing authors in leading plastic surgery textbook Grabb's Encyclopaedia of Flaps.

Dr Ho has worked alongside top plastic surgery centres in Korea such as Hanyang University Hospital, 101 Plastic Surgery Clinic and BIO Plastic Surgery Clinic. His invaluable training, together with his passion for research has also led to the discovery of several new surgical techniques. This includes the use of orbicularis oculi muscle-sparing and the "under-through" levator aponeurosis plication technique for upper eyelid ptosis surgery, the use of ear cartilage with thigh fascia for nose augmentation and the muscle-sparing pedicled TRAM flap for breast reconstruction.

Other accolades to his name include receiving the Gold Medal from the College of Surgeons in 2014 and being awarded the MOH Health and Manpower Development Program award for Aesthetic Surgery and Craniofacial Surgery Fellowship in Seoul, South Korea.

Married to a beautiful wife and as a father of two, Dr Samuel has a profound respect for all mothers who have undergone childbirth and experienced changes in their bodies post-pregnancy. Helping people feel good about themselves and restoring their self-confidence is the driving force behind his passion for plastic surgery.

Aside from regular work, Dr Samuel dedicates time towards helping those in need and doing pro-bono surgeries. He is a supporter of a not-for-profit medical volunteer organisation that provides reconstructive facial surgery to young children in Indonesia.
